

NOT FOR YOU

The words 'Earlier tonight' are pasted on the top left corner of the screen, and we can hear the fans buzz with anticipation.

"I told you a thousand fuckin' times already."

Mike Sloan is exasperated.

Mike Sloan:

I. Do. Not. Know. Where. He. Is.

Kelly Evans is not impressed. She stalks the hallways of the Executive Wing of the DEFplex with the hurried gait of a woman not to be trifled with. Mike, road agent and former Eric Dane lackey extraordinaire, does his best to match her pace while keeping to a respectable distance behind her.

Kelly Evans:

I know he's here. There's a Rolls Royce parked across three spots in the garage. If that's not him I'll eat my Louboutins.

Sloan chuckles at the thought and Kelly cuts him a dangerous glare before stopping in front of her office. With a snarl she turns into the door and shoulders through it, damn near taking it off its' hinges.

She manages two steps into the Pleasure Dome and stops dead in her tracks.

"Evenin' Kels, I heard you were looking for me."

She speaks backward over a shoulder.

Kelly Evans:

You're dismissed, Mike.

The agent mumbles and rolls his eyes as he takes his leave. Meanwhile the HBIC refocuses on the cause of her sudden stop; the Only Star, the Real/Original DEFIANT, Eric Dane. He is besuited from head to toe as usual, from the Maybach Sunshades to the Dragon-skinned Wingtips and everything in between. He smiles, perfect teeth gleaming in a way that makes Ms. Evans more than a bit uncomfortable.

Kelly Evans:

As for you-

He cuts her off smoothly.

Eric Dane:

Love what you've done with my office, Kels. All this leather and steel and is that the faint odeur of lubrication hanging on the air?

He sniffs the air and winks at her.

Eric Dane:

Kelly Evans, professional be thy name.

A tense moment sits between them. The smile never fades from Eric's face and that does nothing to help Kelly figure a way through this apparent minefield without blowing anything up. Finally she closes the space between them and throws both hands onto her desk, leaning in deep with as much gusto as she can muster.

Kelly Evans:

What do you want, Eric?

He sniggers.

Kelly Evans:

You here to take my gig away? Get your old boring office back? You ready to go back to the grind of babysitting grown men who roll around in their underwear for a living?

She pours it on.

Kelly Evans:

I'm here to tell you that it hasn't changed. It's just as soul-crushing and unrelentless now as it ever was. Maybe even moreso. So what gives? What do you want?

Eric stalls, deliberately. He kicks his feet down off of Kelly's glass-topped desk and stands, buttoning the jacket of his suit and adjusting his tie. Everything must be perfect, remember that. With a flourish he gestures for Kelly to take her seat.

Eric Dane:

I'm not here for your job, Kels.

Tentatively she retakes her throne, crossing her legs at the ankles and watching as her mentor and business partner saunters around the office. He decides against the uncomfortable chairs that sit across from the boss and takes a standing position behind them.

Eric Dane:

I'm here for entirely selfish reasons, none of which has anything to do with the day to day runnings of DEFIANCE. You're doing an adequate enough job for the time being-

It's her turn to interrupt.

Kelly Evans:

Excuse me? Adequate? I'll have you know that-

Eric Dane:

Ratings are down. Buyrates are down. Merch sales are down. Lindsay Troy's salty vagina bled all over DEFIANCE for so long that the word "faggot" hasn't been used on screen since like 2015. You do know I put in twenty grand to the FCC just for the use of that word because it was practically Angus's whole gimmick, right?

Kelly Evans:

But-

Eric Dane:

And don't even get me started on what it takes to be put into a position where CURTIS FUCKING PENN is the Champion.

Kelly Evans:

Now you hold on right there! If it hadn't been for that little stunt you let Dan Ryan pull-

Eric Dane:

Lindsay fucking Troy. Lesser of two evils. Pay attention for fuck's sake!

Sufficiently cowed Kelly lets out a sigh of defeat.

Kelly Evans:

Fine. I fucked everything all up. What is it that you want if not my job?

Dane gives her a moment to feel sorry for herself. Absently he rolls his eyes before continuing on as before.

Eric Dane:

Kels. I told you. I'm not here for your job. You need to understand that if I wanted it I've got plenty of grounds to take it, but I don't. This was your first year, you were bound to make some mistakes. We're not losing money and we're not closed. Maybe you fucked up, but you didn't let it defeat you and you're bound to get better. That's why I put you in charge. I swear to Christ, by the twenty years we've put in this business together, I'm not here for you.

She looks up at him all doe-eyed.

Eric Dane:

I'm here for someone else.

Kelly Evans:

Who then?

Eric Dane:

I'm here for Cayle.

She cocks an eyebrow, he smirks.

Eric Dane:

Mikey turns his attention to the screen, pointing the remote over at the TV to rewind the footage.

Kendrix, looking slightly upset, holds the bowl close and guarded to his chest.

Mikey Unlikely:

Kendrix sighs before handing the bowl over to Mikey who grabs a handful of Popcorn.

The two bump fists together before switching their attention back to the screen. But before they can get into their 13th viewing of the replay, Klein struggles through the door carrying a keg of beer, giant cotton candy and a huge bag of Popcorn.

Mikey Unlikely:

About damn time Klein. Where the hell have you been Brev?!

Having placed the keg down on the ground Klein droops his head, scratching the top of the box covering his face and pointing out beyond the door.

Kendrix:

Klein arching his back, holding his arm round the lower area due to the strain of carrying the keg, moves around the table and stands in front of the bruv's, separating their requested supplies out in front of them.

Mikey Unlikely:

Kendrix:

Klein looks panicky over to his left and then his right before scurrying out of the Brev's way. Standing up next to Mikey's side of the couch, Klein watches the footage through his box eye holes. Mikey grabs his light yellow giant cotton candy and offers some to Kendrix.

Kendrix:

Mikey shrugs his shoulders, slightly offended by the rejection.

BIG back body drop from Kendrix, as JFK falls to a knee, bracing his leg from the vault. The D quickly gets back to his feet and charges to Kendrix, who dives forward and places both palms into the D's chest. With a quick burst of strength, Kendrix tosses the D square up in the air in a flapjack. As the D falls, he adjusts and lands on Kendrix's shoulder, hooking him in a headlock and spinning into a twisting DDT. The D dives on top for the pin, hooking the leg nearest to the ropes.

JFK with a kickout, as Mikey almost looks like he shit a brick. He begins to pound the apron, shouting at Kendrix to "finish the bellend!"

DDK:

Mikey, offering his own form of encouragement.

Angus:

I'd encourage both of them to drive themselves off a cliff.

The D lifts Kendrix off his feet into the ropes. JFK reverses the Irish whip, and the D rebounds to duck a clothesline. The D then springs off the middle rope, and twists, looking for a cross body, but JFK catches the smaller flier as he dives. JFK falls to one knee to hold The D up, and then pounces to his feet, using that momentum to hit a fallaway slam. The D rolls completely out of the ring, falling right next to...

Angus:

That stupid box man probably doesn't even know his old friend is at this feet!

DDK:

The question is what Klein will do here. He's made his allegiances known, and Mikey in particular is looking to have Klein do what he can to make sure JFK wins. Thankfully, Carla is there watching from the ring.

The D pulls himself up using the ring apron tarp, and sees Klein standing over him. He looks at Klein, tears welling up in his eyes, as his body language just asks Klein "Why." Klein has no chance to respond, as Kendrix slides out of the ring, kicking The D in the face with a baseball slide. The D tumbles into the guardrail, as Kendrix lands on his feet. JFK orders Klein to grab the D and toss him inside, as Kendrix follows.

JFK dives and hits a double ax handle to the recovering D. Kendrix then firmly locks in a cover, hooking the leg.

One.

Two.

Kickout by the D. Kendrix then locks in a front facelock, wrenching the hold in and slowing the pace. The DEF crowd gets impatient as Mikey cheers on JFK like he just hit a suicide tope or something crazy. After a good thirty seconds, The D begins to fight back to his feet. First to his knees, then with repeated blows and punches to JFK's body. The D then charges, sending Kendrix back first into the turnbuckle. A big knife edge chop from the D echoes through the arena, almost sending JFK off his feet. Another, and another, before The D grabs Kendrix for an Irish Whip. It's reversed, and Kendrix charges in. His leg slows him down slightly, allowing the D to counter with a high leg straight to the jaw. The D hops out of the ring onto the apron and begins to climb the turnbuckle.

It's here where Klein gets involved as Mikey screams at him. Klein grabs the D's leg so he can't ascend to the top rope. Carla rushes over to yell at Klein, but the former DOC champ rushes to the middle rope. He hooks the D in a headlock, and hits a big superplex.

Problem, The D and Kendrix tumble into Carla as they land, sending out a "Woah" from the DEF crowd.

DDK:

Referee's are never safe, especially in DEFIANCE, but I've never seen a superplex splat an official like that.

Angus:

And look at Mikey, like the snake in the grass waiting to pounce.

Mikey slides into the ring and takes a stomp or two at the D, before Elise springboards in and catches Mikey with a missile dropkick. Mikey slips out of the ring, as Elise charges toward him, diving over the top rope with a hands free suicide dive.

Klein watches the two tumble on the outside, and then looks back into the ring. Kendrix is crawling, and drapes a hand over the D's chest. Klein, in a rush, rips off his shirt to reveal a referee's shirt, much to the chagrin of the DEF crowd.

DDK:

Really?! This is how this match is going to end?!

Angus:

You know box brain's gonna fast count it.

Klein slides into the ring, and checks the D's shoulder. He begins to count, but it's a regular normal count.

One.

Two.

Kickout by the D. The DEF crowd cheers.

DDK:

Well, even when Klein was the official for PCP, he seemed to try his best to call things right down the center.

Angus:

For some reason, Box Brain must have some respect for the pinstripes.

Kendrix looks up at Klein in shock. He gets to his feet and then into Klein's face, berating him, telling him he needs to count faster. He smacks his hands together at an exceedingly quick pace. It's here where the D hooks Kendrix from behind, rolling him up in a school boy.

ONE...

TWO...

THREE...

The bell rings as Kendrix kicks out JUST after an incredibly fast count. This kick out sends the D sprawling out of the ring to Elise's side. "Live for the Night" begins to play over the pa system as the D tosses his hands up in celebration. The D reaches down, grabs Elise and the two begin to hightail it away from the ring. Kendrix gets up, and begins to scream, shouting, and pushing Klein away. Klein then mimes his own quick paced hand clap back at JFK. Kendrix, annoyed, slips himself out of the ring and begins yelling at the time keeper, shouting "That wasn't a legal count!"

It's at this point that a groggy Carla Ferrari recovers, and begins to discuss matters with Quimbley, as Kendrix begins to smile.

Quimbley:

Ladies and gentleman, due to the fact that Klein is not a licensed DEFIANCE official, this match, MUST CONTINUE!

DDK:

This match isn't over Angus! JFK tried to cheat his way to victory, only to have it backfire, and then, be allowed to continue as if nothing ever happened!

Angus:

And it doesn't seem like the Pop Culture Phenoms are in any sort of rush to return to ringside.

The D and Elise are still making their way back up the ramp, as the D shouts "I PINNED KENDRIX!" to wild cheers. In the ring, Kendrix is stomping around, angry, as Carla begins to count the D out. The D and Elise wave by to Kendrix in the ring, who's kicking the bottom rope demanding they return. Mikey Unlikely slides in at this point, and begins to goad the PCP back, but the tag champions simply leave the area to cheers.

DDK:

This will technically be a victory for Kendrix, defeating the D via count out.

Angus:

Yeah, but everyone saw that bellend get hoisted by his own retard!

DDK:

That's petard.

Angus:

What did I say? WHATEVER! Everyone saw Kendrix down as the ref's hand hit three. Even if it was a stupid man wearing a box learning how to count.

DDK:

Not returning to the ring to continue might be the best form of vengeance the PCP could give the Bruvs, and the DEF Faithful understand that full heartedly!

Angus:

Can someone get these complainers out of the ring!? We have better WRESTLERS to watch!

BEHIND THE DEFSEC WALL

There are two large men standing in front of the locker room door; they don't appear to be DEFSec, but they're large, suited, and have wires in their ears. And they've been the cause of speculation for at least two people.

Calico Rose:

Do you think they're like the guards at Buckingham Palace?

She waves a hand in front of one's face.

Guard:

No.

Impulse:

Look, but don't touch, Cally. Gentlemen, can we go in?

Guard:

No. Strict orders from Mr. Murray; only the people on the list can go in.

Silence. Cally and Impulse look at each other.

Cally:

But--I'm Cally, and this is Impulse. How can we not be on the list? We've eaten haggis together!

The guards look them over.

Guard #2:

You're both on the list... but he's not.

Behind Cally and Impulse stands Scott Douglas, recently 'adopted' by them due to their common problems with Codename Reaper. Impulse looks back at the guards with a raised eyebrow.

Impulse:

Does he... look like Bronson Box?

Cayle Murray:

I bloody hope not.

The youngest member of the Murray clan speaks from behind his DEFsec bouncers. He wasn't having a particularly exciting evening behind their protective wall, and his frustration came through in every syllable.

Cayle Murray: [peering through the guards]

Scott Douglas, you just made the li--

He pauses.

Cayle Murray:

Cally:

See?

Inside the room, Impulse closes the door behind them.

Impulse:

How long is this gonna go on? Sooner or later we're gonna need to deal with the situation between you two.

Cally:

Sooner? I vote sooner. Not enough fun happening here anymore.

Cayle Murray:

Well, I was planning on kicking his head-off later on. If you guys could step aside for me as soon as he hits the ring, I'd be much obliged.

Cayle cracks his knuckles. The match is still some time away, but he's all set to go. Heck, what else are you going to do when you're stuck behind a wall of security guards all night?

Cayle Murray:

Load of nonsense, this. Security guards? Absurd. Totally absurd. I get putting Box under lock and key - he's got prior, after all - but I can't help but shake the feeling I'm being punished for standing up for myself.

Cally pats him on the shoulder.

Cally:

And that's just not the way to go about things. But in this business, you know as well as we do the first priority is for the office to cover their own slippery bits. Which is weird, because you'd think they'd be okay with two guys whose job it is to beat people up beating each other up, and doing it where people can see it and pay money for it and--

Impulse gently takes her hand and moves her away.

Impulse:

You want him in this match, you'll get him in this match. Thing is, like you said - you're standing up for yourself, he's got a prior, blah blah blah. Going after him before the match, without a match - when you don't know the stakes or what he's got to give him an advantage? Ain't nothing good that can come of it.

Cayle Murray:

As if I'd go after him before the match. He's the problem - not me. We've got a nice little date lined-up for ASCENSION, and tonight should make for a nice little matinee. Regardless, it gives me solace to know that Bronson's probably even more frustrated at being cooped-up than I am. I wonder how many times they've had to sedate him...

Impulse:

Especially after Eric Dane showed up at your door, sir?

And the elephant in the room is finally addressed. Cayle pauses, but only for a moment.

Cayle Murray: [hastily]

I've got nothing to say about Eric Dane that I didn't say to his face last week.

His expression turns colder.

Cayle Murray:

That guy has interfered with my career enough. It's over. No more.

He waves a dismissive hand, then addresses Scott Douglas.

Cayle Murray:

So, Scott - who are you trying to kick in the face tonight?

Scott Douglas:

The same guy who's been kicking me in the face for the past four months - CODENAME: Reaper.

Cally sidles up to Douglas and puts a hand on his shoulder.

Cally:

I'll say.

Impulse looks at her.

Impulse:

What are you doing, Rosie?

Cally takes her hand down.

Cally:

I... don't have anyone's teeth to kick in, I'm just trying to be part of the group.

Impulse and Cayle chuckle; Douglas, not yet used to the Callyisms of DEFIANCE, joins in a few seconds later.

Scott Douglas:

It's been less time, Cayle - but somehow, I really feel like I get it ... On a deeper level than I can explain. Reaper's been trying, mentally, to do to me what Bronson's been trying to do to you, physically. I'm out of patience with it, I want it has to end.

Impulse:

After the last DEFtv, I'm with you, sir.

Cayle Murray:

Reaper, yes... if Jason and Andy weren't in Japan/suspended, I'd have one standing by beside the arena's lighting controls.

He pauses.

Cayle Murray:

That's one creepy individual. And then there's Hoffman, who hasn't been around here in a while, but can twist any of us into submission if given half a chance. Plus, he's Box's trainee. I've got a little bravado in me, but I don't know if I want them both at the same time. Let's all keep an eye on him, just in case.

Cally:

I'll keep two eyes on him, just for you three.

Hands are shaken, and the three who are not currently under house arrest leave the room. Cally pauses to get a closer look at one of security's earpieces, but is quickly led away by Impulse.

Scott Douglas:

Curious, man - that bit Reaper played after your match. What was that all about?

Impulse looks at him.

Impulse:

It's a long, boring story, sir. And if it means what I think it means...

Cally:

...then the slippery bits are about to hit the fan.

There's a tiny stream of blood seeping from his right eyebrow, but he doesn't look overly concerned as he takes Box back towards the barricade.

Angus:

THERE they are!

DDK:

Looks like Cayle's taken a lick or two!

Angus:

I'm not surprised - these two could've been brawling in the boiler room for all we know!

Cayle bundles Boxer over the barricade then follows himself, but Reinhardt Hoffman crushes him with a running knee before he has a chance to do anything! In the ring, Codename: Reaper has Douglas primed and ready, and he's about to take his head off with a steel chair.

DDK:

This isn't no conventional wrestling match, that's for sure!

Benny Doyle doesn't have a clue where to be or what to do. Usually one of DEFIANCE's more accomplished officials, he has found himself in the middle of a massacre. He looks at Hoffman and the recovering Box working on Cayle, then at Reaper and his chair, and makes the only decision that makes sense...

DING! DING! DING!

DDK:

It's a no contest! Doyle has called it off!

The sound of the bell distracts Reaper enough for Douglas to recover, then spear him to the ground, knocking the chair away.

Angus:

AWWWWW C'MAWN!

Darren Quimbey:

Ladies and Gentlemen, the official has ruled this match a no contest!

That doesn't stop the participants trying to beat the shit out of each other, however! Impulse saves Cayle from the 2-on-1 assault on the outside, taking Hoffman away from the scene, while Cayle catches Box with a desperate headbutt. Suddenly, a stream of DEFsec charge down from the top of the ramp...

Angus:

These guys too?! But we were having so much fun, dammit!

DDK:

Something tells me the boss lady has seen enough, Angus, and I can't say I blame her! This wasn't even a match - it was a fight!

A couple of the DEFsec head for the athletes in the ring, but the bulk go after Cayle and Box. A handful look recognisable from the group guarding Cayle's locker-room earlier in the evening, and they immediately separate the groggy brawlers, pulling them apart amidst their protests.

The crowd boo, obviously.

DDK:

Cayle and Box are going to have to save it for ASCENSION, it seems! A smart choice - I'm sure the last thing Kelly Evans needs is these two murdering each other ahead of one of the biggest events of the year.

Angus:

Yeah, you're probably right. Look at Box, though: he's bloody feral!

Sure enough, Box's face is a deep shade of crimson, and he's practically foaming at the mouth. He tries everything to break through his oppressors, but there's three of them and only one of him. Cayle, meanwhile, is still trying to get loose himself, but looks more accepting of his fate as DEFsec take him to the ramp and start heading for the exit.

ALL IN

As the herd of DEFsec slowly move toward the back, Cayle, Box and Hoffman entangled in their ranks, CODENAME: Reaper is the lone competitor left in the ring. Scott Douglas and Impulse regroup from the chaos on the low end of the ramp as Cally joins them.

Lights out.

Two blue orbs float in the middle of the ring like the blue flame of smelting metal ore. The Faithful's camera flashes are flashing brightly; trying to catch the action going on in the middle of the ring. A few seconds pass and the blue orbs vanish without a trace. Shrouded in darkness other than the weaker digital equivalent of flash bulbs; Impulse and Scott Douglas stare toward the ring as the lights return.

DDK:

Reaper! This is unprecedented, partner. Lighting malfunctions normally lead to the disappearance of CODENAME: Reaper!

Angus:

Misdirection, Keebs. It's not about vanishing, it's always been a misdirection. It's probably just the red - Oh look, he's got a microphone.

DDK: [confused]

Wait, what...

Reaper: [modified voice]

You two have become an unforgivable annoyance. An annoyance that must be... SHALL be put to rest.

The Faithful explode in a chorus of boos and unorganized chants.

Reaper:

It is apparent that we will have to see this venture to it's forgone conclusion at the ASCENSION. Scott Douglas ... "Seattle's FORGOTTEN SON" do you dare to brave the unknown?

Reaper lowers the microphone momentarily and his eyes flare up in a hot emerald green that reignites the crowds hate.

The camera cuts to the good guys on the outside of the ring. The green fires up Douglas. He is in audible but clearly cursing and highly agitated. The always measured Impulse shoots Douglas a glance while holding his hand out, palm down; suggesting he have cooth and patience.

Back to the ring.

Reaper:

Will the epitome of integrity and valor accept an unknown fate?

Back to the ringside trio. Impulse, unheard, clearly mouths, "yup."

Reaper:

The ASCENSION ... The Good versus the RIGHTEOUS! The pair before me versus...

Reaper steps closer to the ring ropes facing the trio.

Reaper:

Us!

Reaper drops the microphone and a loud thud startles the arena.

DDK: [still confused]

Who is Us?.

Cut to a close up of Douglas with Impulse and Cally. Both Impulse and Douglas nod in agreeance with the challenge. Cally only slightly delayed after quickly looking to Impulse and briefly to Douglas, joins in with the type of enthusiasm only she can bring. Impulse holds up his fist, which Cally proceeds to bump, complete with a blowing - of - it - up, which of course, brings the chant from the fans.

She then turns her fist to Scott Douglas, who... after a moment's confusion, follows suit.

Douglas looks to Impulse and shrugs slightly. The camera audio vaguely picks up a "Why wait?" or something to the effect. Impulse returns the shrug and at the very same moment the DEFtron comes alive and the change in lighting catches Cally's peripheral attention first. She spins around and gets an eye full, as Douglas and Impulse begin to step forward and rush the ring. Douglas continues on but Impulse is halted by Cally's hand on his shoulder. Her eyes affixed to the screen in disbelief, she points with her free hand as she is left speechless. Impulse turns to see the screen just as the delayed audio kicks in and Douglas' attention is grabbed before he can enter the ring.

CLAP

The camera pans up just as the feed is switched over to the visual. It plays like a low resolution GIF in slow motion. What is only a matter of seconds plays out like an eternity yet bares no context other than; "Sub Pop" Scott Douglas and a unidentifiable man in the middle of a wrestling ring with a women standing in between the pair. Each man is found mid swing and wielding a steel chair. The climax and subsequent loop over point is no more than a second or two after the pair of chairs meet, clap ... and with the unknown women in the middle collapsing after her head and neck our contorted in a violent fashion. And again. And again.

The camera returns to the ringside and is focused on Douglas' mortified face. The Faithful begin to boo with a vitriol normally reserved for Mikey or Hitler.

The camera cuts to a view from the top of the ramp looking down on Impulse and Cally as well a Douglas a yard or two behind them. Also, the ring ...

DDK:

I don't know what the hell is going on here!

Angus:

I'll tell you what ... WITHOUT the lights that multicolored devil vanished, again!

Cally turns around toward Douglas. Impulse isn't far behind.

The camera switches to ringside and catches Douglas in the profile as well as Cally's disappointment and the closest thing she can pass as a mean face. Impulse remains measured but glares toward his temporary tag team partner with many questions in his eyes.
