

DAD OF THE YEAR

Open on the backstage area.

We go inside the locker room of the former FIST of DEFIANCE Champion, Scott Stevens, and we see the Texan talking to his son.

Scott Stevens:

Tonight boy, I'm going to show you what a real wrestler looks like.

Stevens says to his son as he is taping up his wrists and hands and Jack slowly nods his head.

Scott Stevens:

You see son, I want you to idealize winners, not some Hollywood stunt double wannabe.

Stevens says as he puts the athletic tape to his mouth and tears it off with his teeth and hits his hands together a couple of times to make sure the tape is nice and tight.

Scott Stevens:

You may think Mikey is someone to look up to Jack, but Mikey has been a loser all his life. Sure, he's had some level of success be that it's been mediocre at best, but he's been more lucky than anything. He says he's a famous musician, but any idiot can become a one hit wonder. He claims to be a famous movie star but he lucked into the movie role that made him famous because he happened to be the tenth guy that starred in it. Hell, Vin Diesel got his start in Saving Private Ryan when he was a soldier in the movie. However, let's leave the entertainment alone and focus on his wrestling career....or lack thereof. Sure, he won the UTA World Championship, but he had to cheat to win, and it seems like cheating is the only thing this guy knows because it took him and two other guys to win the DEFIANCE Southern Heritage Championship from a girl. I mean how bad do you have to be at wrestling when you have to have help to beat a girl? I guess when she had you tapping out in the middle of the ring you need all the help you can get I guess.

Stevens says with a shrug and when he does he notices the air pods in his son's ears.

Scott Stevens:

Jack? You listening?

Stevens gets his answer as his son doesn't reply and the Texan goes over and takes one of them out of his ear startling the young man.

Scott Stevens:

What are you listening to?

Stevens asks as his son as he places the air pod into his ear and hears some "Certified Suburban."

Scott Stevens:

Mikey!

Stevens says in an angry tone as we cut to The Wrestle-Plex packed with the enthralled Faithful.

DDK:

The same Shooter Landell whom injured Gage Blackwood and forced him to retire two months ago!

Gage Blackwood slowly comes out from behind the curtain. He shows no signs of an injury. No neckbrace, no crutches, no walking boot or cast on his arm. Instead, he wears black jeans and a black t-shirt with his long brown hair all wet and wrapped behind his neck.

Angus:

Pretty sure that retirement is off, haha.

Blackwood begins his descent to the ring. He doesn't acknowledge anyone other than keeping his eyes focused on the squared circle in front of him. The Faithful keep booing, although there is still some confusion as to what the fans should do.

Blackwood's new theme song carries him up the stairs and into the ring where he asks for a microphone.

Gage Blackwood:

Let me explain this in simpler terms. I came into DEFIANCE after working my ass off in the indies for a number of years. I came in here and I started off terribly. I got my ass fed to me by David Hightower but then I put it all together and I earned your respect when two years ago at DEFCON I jumped off the rafters and put Hightower through a table.

Then, in a very quick and strange manner, he snaps back to a calm and peaceful state of mind. With the least amount of emotion shown in his speech, he talks again. This time in a monotone and emotionless way.

Gage Blackwood:

For the record, I want you to know that I faked the entire injury. While Shooter Landell did hurt me, I didn't fracture my arm, I didn't break my leg, I didn't get a concussion and I certainly did not retire.

Ryan Batts is no stranger to the Stevens Family as he has been embroiled in a feud with them since being called up to the main roster.

Angus:

And The WrestleDorks have owned The Derp Dynasty when it mattered and tonight will be no different.

DDK:

I don't know about that partner because The Stevens Dynasty is difficult to defeat, but Scott Stevens is a different animal himself as only two people have defeated the Texan in singles matches in his short, but successful DEFIANCE career.

Batts paces back and forth in his corner like a lion who hasn't eaten in weeks as he awaits his opponent.

Tyler shouts so loud the broadcast picks him up over the ruthless thunder and lightning playing on the speakers.

And then...

The two very skinny and tall large men rappel from the rafters, although this time much slower. They land in the middle of the circle the other men have formed around The Fuse Bros. One of the towering men reaches into his trench coat and pull out a loaded rubber chicken.

The second towering man reaches into his coat and pulls out a ring bell. They lay the objects at Tyler's feet.

Tyler looks down at them and then back at the two men while Conor continues to hide behind his brother, only to pop his eyes out for a quick second and then vanish again.

The thunder and lightning stop. The house lights come on and a strange silence sweeps the arena as The Gamers anticipate on what's to come.

Angus:
What the hell are those items!?

DDK:

Used by The Stevens to beat The Fuse Bros. at MAXDEF. It also cost them their number one contendership when Bo Stevens used it against Tyler in the three-way with The WrestleFriends...

Tyler stares at one of the towering men and then at the other. He looks around, seeing he's completely surrounded. He gets right into both of the lanky men's faces.

Tyler Fuse:

Get lost.

The towering men look at each other and nod. Just like that, they turn away from Tyler and Conor. The other 10+ men begin to leave the ring.
