FAVORED SAINTS CHAMPIONSHIP: HENRY KEYES Â© vs. REZIN

Lance:

We have a great lineup here on Night Two of DEFtv 170! Tyler Fuse will take on David Fox in what is sure to be a technical showcase, Gulf Coast Connection faces the unique new team of Butcher Victorious and Justin Sane, and in our main event, trios action! Jack Mace teams with the Saturday Night Specials against the BFTA trio of Alvaro de Vargas and the Lucky Sevens! But first-

Just as Lance is about to announce the opener, we see Rezin and Henry Keyes tumble out of the back, grappling and flailing at each other slowly down the ramp!

DDK:

The Favoured Saints Championship will be defended by "The Kraken" Henry Keyes and a man who knows him EXTREMELY well, "The Escape Artist" REZIN!

Lance:

Better yet, a man who KNEW him extremely well, Keebs! The man on the wrong end of the Balcony Bulldog has not been seen since DEFROAD, the Airship Pirate is gone! Henry Keyes is now The Kraken!

DDK:

Referee Carla Ferrari is running out now, trying to get these men separated and directed toward the ring!

Keyes and Rezin continue to trade shots as they roll over each other all the way to the ring apron. Carla has the Favoured Saints championship in her arms and yells at the men to get into the ring so she can ring the bell. They don't listen at first, instead continuing to exchange blows.

Lance:

We understand this match was booked almost IMMEDIATELY after the ACE of DEFIANCE ladder match, where Rezin went out of his way to save Keyes on multiple occasions and Henry chose to not return the favor!

DDK:

The Favoured Saints champ denied the favor, and Rezin is bound and determined to knock some sense into his old friend!

Carla shouts something extra threatening, and both men finally disengage, roll into the ring, separate into opposing corners, and catch their respective breaths. Carla holds up the championship belt, hands it to someone at ringside before signaling for the bell.

DING DING

Both men are already sweating and breathing heavily. Champion and challenger slowly approach each other at the center of the ring, exchanging words that can't be picked up. The conversation gets heated, as Rezin furiously shakes his head and Henry wears a scowl. The two of them are practically chest to chest as it escalates into a full shouting match.

The Goat Bastard accusingly jabs a finger into the champion's chest, and Keyes angrily shoves him away. Rezin shoves him back, and...

WHAP!

OOOooohhh...

Keyes paws him with a loud SLAP that leaves him staggering a few steps. Rezin takes a beat to rub the soreness in his jaw... then, looking into the crowd, a beguiling grin forms on his face. In flash, the fists go flying!

RRRAAAAAHHH!!!

DDK:

HERE - WE - GO!! This match almost immediately descends into an absolute BRAWL between former friends, as Henry Keyes and Rezin are absolutely laying into each other without remorse!

Lance:

We saw how Henry Keyes was ice cold in his match with Conor Fuse - this feels different, MUCH more heated!

Keyes' left hand clinches Rezin around the back of the neck, trapping his head as pummels the face with his right and leads him across the ring. Rezin responds with a head clinch of his own and pivots, dumping Henry into the corner! Rezin furiously punches away while the champion tries to cover up, but when he steps back to introduce his feet into the fight with a high kick, the Kraken blocks the leg.

DDK:

Keyes off the block, grabs Rezin by the BEARD--and YANKS HIM into a SICKENING HEADBUTT!

Lance:

That's - I guess it's not cheating, but it's damn dirtier than we're used to seeing from Keyes!

Rezin reels off the headbutt, clutching his nose, and Keyes runs out of the corner looking for a bulldog--but the Escape Artist deftly DUCKS, twirls him around, and recommences throwing wild rights and lefts! The champion responds with a flurry of punches of his own, and the crowd noise from the Okie Faithful nearly blows the roof off of the Jim Norick Arena!

RRRAAAAAHHH!!!

Lance:

Neither man is letting up!

DDK:

This has not started out as a catch-as-catch-can contest, but the Faithful are into it and so am I!

The Goat Bastard begins gaining an edge... until the champion dips down with a shoulder tackle, and both men spill through the ropes to the outside! They scramble off the floor and immediately go back to trading shots, dancing out of control as they wrangle for leverage and stumble off the harder hits.

Lance:

They're bouncing off the barricade and apron like it was HUMAN PINBALL out there!

DDK:

And here's Keyes going for the TILT, instinctively scooping Rezin off his feet after a missed right, and--GOOD GOD, HE JUST DROVE HIM BACK FIRST into the steel ring post...

...and GOOD GOD, HE JUST DID IT A SECOND TIME!!

The crowd "oohs" in pain as Keyes drops the twisted mess of Rezin on the floor, and takes a beat to regain his senses after the numerous hits to the head. The Escape Artist is slowly in the process of recovering, until a knee shot leaves him stunned and the champion tosses him back into the ring by the head before Carla reaches the count of seven.

DDK:

Henry Keyes is returning this fight to the ring! Rezin is still squirming around the mat in pain, but now Keyes rolls him over and makes the cover!

ONE!

TWO!

KICKOUT!

Lance:

Be as it may, Henry Keyes now has gained full control of this match thanks to taking advantage of the ringside environment.

Keyes rolls Rezin onto his belly, clasps his hands under the chin, and torments his former friend by stretching him up into a camel clutch, wrenching back on the neck and spine! Rezin's face looks like a Total Recall special effect, and he likewise makes Arnold's agony noises.

Rezin:

AAAYYEE!!!AAUUGGHHA AOOGHYEAAUUGGH!!

Lance:

I think he covered all the vowels there...

DDK:

And sometimes 'Y'.

Carla leans in looking for a tap, but the Goat Bastard DEFIANTly shakes his head and refuses to submit! Like a body contortionist, he twists and writhes his arms free until he can pry away Keyes' hands and slip out through the back door!

DDK:

And just like that, Rezin ESCAPES the submission attempt! Back on his feet now, as the Favoured Saints Champion comes around the LARIAT--DUCKED by Rezin--and he COUNTERS with the NECKBREAKER!

Lance:

Great turnaround! But can Rezin capitalize?

Rezin pulls himself to his feet, but has to stretch out his aching back before he can stay on top of the champ. Keyes begins pushing himself up, but keenly sees Rezin coming off the ropes, and at the last moment avoids a CURBSTOMP from the Goat Bastard by grabbing the leg.

DDK:

NO!! Rezin gets swept to the mat... Henry Keyes has him now in the STRETCH MUFFLER! That's even further punishment to Rezin's spine!

Lance:

More traditional of an execution than he had in his match against Conor Fuse, it looks like Keyes has really started to master this brutal submission hold!

Rezin again shakes off the ref and begins to twist himself out from under Keyes knee, but Henry, knowing exactly what he's attempting, quickly throws Rezin's leg off his neck to transition into wheelbarrow position and hoists the Goat Bastard off the canvas!

DDK:

WHEELBARROW FACEBUSTER by the Favoured Saints Champion before Rezin had a chance to escape again! Now he rolls him over onto his back and hooks the legs with a mounted pin!

ONE!

TWO!

NO!! Rezin SITS UP and SLAPS ON THE CABRO CLUTCH!!

RRRAAAAAHHH!!!

Off the pin attempt, Rezin's legs are in the perfect position to trap Henry into a body scissor while he wraps up the arms and locks in the choke! Keyes desperately flails and twists in an attempt to roll himself out of it, but can't get himself over!

DDK:

The tables have turned in this Favoured Saints Title match! Rezin has that choke locked in, and Keyes has nowhere to go!

Lance:

This was the comeback the Escape Artist needed to stay in this battle. Keyes didn't anticipate finding himself in this position.

DDK:

And how does he find his way out of it?

Unable to go left or right, Henry instead goes back, pushing off his heels to elevate his back and rolls Rezin's shoulders to the mat!

DDK:

Ferrari making the count!

ONE!

TWO!

REZIN BREAKS THE HOLD to get the shoulder up!

Lance:

And now Keyes has the space to break free!

The Kraken elbows, kicks, and snaps his way out of Rezin's body scissor, twists himself around into the full-guard position, and proceeds to relentlessly punch the Goat Bastard's face and head until he breaks himself free. Carla leans in to check on Rezin, lying stunned on the canvas. He doesn't stay there long as Henry brushes by the official and peels him back off the mat.

DDK:

Keyes practically pummeled his way out of the Cabro Clutch, and now he seeks to press his advantage, getting Rezin back up onto a set of rubber legs! Keyes lifts him from BEHIND... and DRILLS HIM on the knee after the ATOMIC DROP!

Lance:

Even more punishment to the spine of Rezin...

Rezin agonizingly knee-walks around the ring, clutching at his lower back. The look on Henry Keyes' face is one of cold, inhuman determination, grabbing Rezin from behind and wrenching him into a Dragon Sleeper while he's still on his knees!

DDK:

"The Kraken" is on a mission to break the Escape Artist in HALF here tonight, driving that knee right into the spine as he pulls back on the Dragon Sleeper!

Lance:

He has to know full well that Rezin will refuse to tap any submission, and may escape anything he twists him into. But on the other hand, he's sending a direct message to his former friend right now: "The longer you continue to push this, the more I will hurt you!"

DDK:

But how much pain and punishment can Rezin take until he chooses to back down? Does he even HAVE a limit?!

Ferrari checks Rezin for a submission, but it's Keyes who waves her off, telling her to not even bother. He rubs salt into the wound by grinding Rezin's spine back and forth over his knee.

Rezin:

GLUAAAAAAHHGGHH!!

Through the back-and-forth motion, Rezin manages to get one of his knees up onto a foot, and suddenly has leverage. Instinctively, his free arm wraps around Henry's head, pulling him into a three-quarter facelock!

DDK:

INTO THE --

NO!!

Keyes scouts Rezin's finisher and boots him away just as the Goat Bastard pushes him off the mat and attempts to flip behind him. Rezin instead crashes to the mat. Animal instinct drives him to push himself back to his feet, but the Kraken puts him right down again with a running BOOT to his head!

DDK:

YAKUUZAAAA KICK nearly takes Rezin's head off! Keyes drops across his chest! To retain the CHAMPIONSHIP...

ONE!

THR -- KICKOUT!!

RRRAAAAAAAHHH!!!

Keyes scowls at Ferrari; not in a way that would suggest he doesn't agree with the count, but one that seems to personally loathe having to continue this.

Lance:

Keyes right now looks like my dad when he took my first dog Fonzi to go live on that farm after he got sick.

DDK:

...you had a dog named Fonzi?

After a beat, Keyes is on his feet, circling and measuring Rezin. He beckons Rezin to "Get the hell up!", and when he finally does-

DDK:

CLOVEN HOOV KICK BY KEYES?!!

Lance:

Not quite squarely though! Rezin's still on his feet!

Rezin stumbles a bit from the impact of Keyes' imperfect spinning heel kick; Keyes stumbles as well as he regains his balance from the attempt. As Rezin spins around, we see enormous rage in his eyes as he yells out, swinging his arms forward...

Rezin:

AHHHHHHHHHHH

CRRRRRRRACK!!!

DDK:

..!!!BELLLLLLLLLLLL CLAP!?? MY GOD, LANCE!

Lance:

Eugh, GROTESQUE! Rezin's quite a bit shorter than Henry, so rather than hitting him in the temple, Rezin reached up and smacked Keyes in the NECK!

Henry coughs and drops, clutching at his throat and sputtering in an attempt to catch his breath! Rezin quickly shoves Henry to his back and cinches both legs!

DDK:

NEW CHAMPION??

THRE -- KICKOUT!!

RRRAAAAAAAAAAHHH!!!

Lance:

Two point nine-nine if I ever SAW it!

Keyes just LURCHES with all the core strength he can muster! He goes bug-eyed with the realization of how close he came to losing and scrambles as quickly as he can to his feet. Keyes lunges forward, swinging his arms almost by instinct, because for all anyone can tell, there is NO way he could have clocked the timing of Rezin getting to his own feet, with perfect timing for...

CRAAAAAAAAAAAAAACK!!!

Rezin:

BLEEARRRRRRRRRK~!

DDK:

BELLLLLL CLAP! He got ALL of that one!

Rezin drops to his forearms and knees. Keyes coughs again and his eye is WIDE with panic at the damage he's received! With desperation, he grasps Rezin's wrists and launches his knee into Rezin's mush...and without hesitation, he does it a second time.

OHHHHH....OHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHH!

Lance:

Keyes grabs his championship and clutches it close for a brief moment - then suddenly, he collects himself, gives one last small cough, and regains his composure. He holds the Favoured Saints Championship high into the air, eye not breaking its stare into Rezin, to a very loud reaction that starts with lower-voiced cheers but steadily grows in boos, especially in the higher-voiced fans..

Lance:

We just witnessed a vicious brawl between two men who, when they first met in 2020, would easily see the fan reactions flipped around from where they are right now! A HUGE portion of this crowd is booing Keyes for that brutal finishing sequence!

DDK:

BUT WHOSE SIDE ARE THEY ON!?

Backstage in front of a DEFIANCE banner stands Jamie Sawyers, but he's not alone. On either side of him are the DEFIANCE Unified Tag Team Champions: Brock Newbludd and Pat Cassidy, The Saturday Night Specialists. Next to Cassidy, wearing new attire that matches the SNS red and black color scheme is their new manager, Ophelia Sykes. Brock has a championship belt slung over his shoulder as does Cassidy. The remaining three can be found with their new manager: Ophelia has one wrapped around her slim waist and two more draped over each shoulder. Covered in gold, Sykes smirks as she looks into the camera.

Jamie Sawyers:

Ladies and gentlemen, I'm here with the DEFIANCE Unified Tag Team Champions and the newest addition to their team, Ophelia Sykes. Gentlemen...

Ophelia snatches the mic away from Sawyers.

Ophelia Sykes:

Actually, that's "Bally Cat" Ophelia Sykes from here on out, Jamie.

She returns the mic to the DEFIANCE interviewers.

Jamie Sawyers:

I stand corrected. "Bally Cat" Ophelia Sykes. Anyway, you two are moments away from tonight's main event, a huge six man tag against your long time rivals, Better Future Talent Agency. Is tonight the night you both feel that you finally put this issue to bed?

Brock Newbludd steps up to the plate to field that one.

Brock Newbludd:

Better Future Talent Agency...more like Buncha Fuckin' Talentless Assholes. Listen, Jamie, people like the BFTA don't ever go away. Tom Morrow's spirit animal is a cockroach and his personality is infectious like genital herpes. Shit ain't ever gonna be put to bed when it comes to us and the BFTA, and that's just fine with us. Your boys here know how to take care of the BFTA. We know how to cut overgrown dickheads like The Lucky Sevens and ADV down to size. But, most importantly, we know how to do it under the brightest lights of them all. The main event, baby.

Sawyers turns to Pat Cassidy.

Jamie Sawyers:

There's a lot of variables in tonight's match, but not the least of which is the fact that in your corner you have The Lucky Seven's former manager, Ophelia Sykes. How does that change your dynamic, and... can you really trust her?

Cassidy smirks. He jerks his thumb toward Ophelia.

Pat Cassidy:

She's standing right here, kid. Why don't you ask her yourself?

Sawyers locks eyes with Ophelia as she moves in to fill the frame and get close to the mic.

Ophelia Sykes:

Can they trust me, Jamie? Can they trust you?? What do we really know about you, anyway?

Sawyers doesn't know how to respond to that, so she keeps going. She looks directly into the camera with eyes that shoot daggers.

Ophelia Sykes:

The fact is, those two dumb lugs wouldn't be able to tie their own shoes without me, and now that I'm on the real winning side, they have no chance. Firing me was the biggest mistake of their life and it's one that they're never going to live down. I'm going to show The Sevens, Morrow, and that whole crew that I am NOT the bitch to mess with, Jamie. And it starts tonight.

Jamie Sawyers:

And what about rumors of your... um, personal relationship with Pat Cassidy? How might that figure into this big match?

Sykes turns to Sawyers. She bites her lower lip.

Ophelia Sykes:

Why, Jamie... are you asking me if I'm available? If you want my number, all you have to do is ask...

She moves closer to Jamie, who begins to sweat. He laughs and throws her head back.

Ophelia Sykes:

God, you're so easy.

As Jamie tries to figure out what to say, Pat snatches the mic away from him and shakes his head in disappointment.

Pat Cassidy:

Way to be under pressure, Sawyers. Never change. But really, you're not asking the real question, so allow me to pick up the slack here: forget about Ophelia, can we trust our third partner tonight? Can we trust Jack Mace? It wasn't that long ago he was Morrow's personal lapdog, and while I know Ophelia is on the up-and-up... I ain't so sure that leopard has changed his spots, know what I mean?

Jamie Sawyers:

And how do you figure that will come into...

The interviewer stops when the aforementioned former lapdog/hitman for Tom Morrow approaches and walks up to Brock, Pat and Ophelia. Jack Mace, clad in his soccer shirt and silver/black ring gear stares at the champions and their new manager. There's an obvious tension and after a few seconds of silence, Mace speaks to Jamie, all while his gaze doesn't leave his tag partners for the evening.

Jack Mace:

Oi... Ophelia. Good to see someone else not drinkin' the fuckin' Kool-Aid, yeah? Jamie?

Jamie Sawyers:

Yeah?

Jack Mace:

So... these guys wanna know if they can trust me? After everything I did for that fuckface, Morrow, and after everything I done to them and everyone else on this roster. They want to know if Ol' Jackie can be trusted?

Jamie Sawyers:

Er... yeah.

Jack Mace:

I'll shoot straight, mates... you can't trust me...

Brock and Pat especially look like they may want to throw down, but Mace tries to explain himself.

Jack Mace:

Hey, hey... easy.. I mean you can't trust me to be your fuckin' chatty buddy... but you can trust that as bad as you want to beat them Sevens pricks... I want that tosser Alvaro just as bad. Fuckin' coward ran away from me last week after spittin' on me family. That don't fly with me. So tonight, long as you two got them Fucky Sevens, I'll snuff out that flamin' prat, Alvaro. Good?

Brock Newbludd:

I might not know what tosser or flamin' prat means, but I don't need to. The look in your eyes is enough for me, Mace. We're good as gold.

Newbludd offers a hand and Mace gives it a firm shake.

Jack Mace:

Aces... also, if that Davey guy can fix me a drink before this match... I wouldn't say no to that. I keep hearin' that guy's a fuckin' regular Harry Potter at drink-makin' and since you probably don't want me settin' foot in your bar... you know?

Brock and Pat exchange confused glances.

Brock Newbludd: [confused]

...What? You think he's just floating around back here making whatever? He has a full time job and he's a wrestler and...

And here comes irony in the form of one Davey La Rue to give this segment a mighty big bitchslap, glass in hand. Uneasily, he hands it over to Mace and opens his empty hand out.

Davey La Rue:

One highball... I'm charing' double, mon ami. On account of whole... you know, you bein' a former BFTA guy and kinda an asshole.

Jack Mace sighs, then reaches into his pocket and slaps a twenty in Davey's hand.

Jack Mace:

Fair.

They trade cash for drink. He takes a sip... then a chug... a chug that doesn't stop until the glass is gone. When he's finished, he gives it back to Davey.

Jack Mace:

See you out there, mates. [He pats Davey] Cheers.

The Killer Bear takes his leave and Jamie Sawyers nods at the SNS and Ophelia as they part ways.

Jamie Sawyers:

♪ "Machinehead" by Bush ♪

Not one for theratics himself, Tyler Fuse appears and marches down to the squared circle.

DDK:

Other than the ACE of DEFIANCE, where there were so many moving parts to begin with, Tyler Fuse has been on quite the roll.

Lance:

Defeating Kerry Kuroyama again at DEFCON certainly takes your status up a notch.

With both men in the ring, referee Benny Doyle calls for the bell.

DING DING

Tyler rushes towards David and clubs him in the side of the head with a hard left uppercut. Not to be outdone, Fox returns the favor with a brutal knee strike into Tyler's jaw. The OG Player stumbles back, rubs his chin and then smiles at The Jersey Devil. Tyler bursts forward with another crack of an uppercut to the side of Fox's head. Once again, David returns the blow with a knee strike... and Tyler returns this blow with an uppercut. The two go back and forth until the younger wrestler works Fox into the ropes. Fuse tosses Fox to the set of ropes across the way and pumps the vet with a knee strike of his own. Tyler looks down at David as if to insinuate that's how you do it.

DDK:

Tyler has put on a hell of a clinic in recent weeks but he's going to find some quick losses if he "mans up" his opponent like this.

Fuse pulls Fox to his feet and hurls him into a turnbuckle. Once David rebounds off the padding... Tyler connects with a Russian leg sweep, followed by an elbow into the temple of the New Jersey native. Tyler drags David upright and Irish whips Fox into the ropes...

Tyler shoots high up from the mat with another knee strike but David Fox catches him and turns it into a back drop. Tyler lands on the side of his neck while Fox collects himself and begins stomping Fuse into a corner.

DDK:

Fox has no quit.

David slings Tyler into the middle of the ring and connects with a buzzsaw kick. This is followed by a vertical leaping Frankensteiner.

Lance:

Fox is not going to be a pushover.

A swinging neckbreaker puts Tyler Fuse in the center of the ring. Although The Game Changer is up to his feet quickly, he's put back to the mat with a roundhouse kick. Fox claps his hands in an attempt to get the crowd going before he bounces off the ropes and drops a leg across Fuse's neck.

Fox keeps his leg across Tyler's neck. It's clear he wants to do more damage. He works Tyler into a submission with the use of his legs in a modified triangle choke. However, the slippery ex-Tag Team Champion shows his skills by fighting onto his knees and turning this into a pinning attempt.

KICKOUT.

DDK:

Very smart call for Tyler. He went to the pin attempt right away.

Lance:

Of course he had to, or he'd have been at risk for being choked out.

Fuse is on his feet first since he was already on his knees during the pin attempt. He finds the ropes and blasts Fox across the face with a missile dropkick. The OG Player wastes no time dragging David upright and then dropping him on his head with an impaler DDT.

Fox continues to show his veteran presence. He rises and blocks a Tyler Fuse pump kick, rolls to his side and takes hold of Fuse's waist. Tyler performs a standing switch... tossing Fox halfway across the ring with an exploder suplex.

Not known for his high flying ability, Tyler works his way to the top rope and crashes down upon Fox with a clothesline the second the vet gets to his feet. Fuse pounds his chest, scrapes Fox off the canvas and lands a pendulum backbreaker.

Tyler could go for the pinfall but immediately decides otherwise. He peels Fox off the canvas and hurls him into a turnbuckle... but it's reversed. Tyler meets the buckle chest-first and stumbles out backwards, straight into a roundhouse kick.

The fans cheer as David Fox hits a snap suplex on Tyler. Fox holds on. He drags Fuse to his feet in an attempt at a falcon arrow suplex but Tyler escapes... Fuse bounces off the ropes and chop blocks Fox's right knee from under him. He immediately grabs Fox's legs and applies a modified Texas cloverleaf.

Lance:

Tyler's won matches like this before!

Fox waves his hands around, trying to fight the pain away. Soon after, he places both hands underneath him, in an attempt to push up and off the mat.

But Tyler sits back. The hold is textbook.

Fox glances up at the referee. Benny Doyle is asking if David wants to give up. He shakes his head no. Not yet.

Tyler keeps the hold locked in. Fox pulls his head as high as it can go... he finally places both hands underneath him and he's able to nudge a little bit towards the ropes.

The look on Tyler's face intensifies, he's not going to drop the hold anytime soon.

Fox reaches out. He's too far away.

And he taps.

DING DING DING

Tyler releases the hold. He stares down at David Fox with a shake of his head.

♪A Beautiful Morning by The Rascals♪

A hand touches the clock reading 8:00 am. Scrow sits up from his bed and stretches his arms as the radio continues to play The Rascals. He yawns for a moment then swings his legs over the bed. The camera pans up to Scrow smacking his lips and then with a huge smile across his face. He looks over to the dresser in front of his bed where the Southern Heritage Championship sits. Dressed in nothing but pajama pants. He stands up and walks over to the window and swings the curtains open, bathing in the bright shining sun beaming through the hotel room.

He walks over to his phone and dials a few numbers and orders his breakfast, before walking to the bathroom. Nothing right now can depress Scrow's mood at this moment. He takes his morning piss, washes his hands, and then proceeds to brush his teeth. As he finishes up his hygiene for the morning he walks over to the bed and sits on it just staring at the championship, with a look of absolute delight.

Come in.

As the attendant rolls in a cart filled with what can only be the most expensive breakfast, you could buy. Scrow examines his food for a moment, then walks over to his dresser and pulls out a 50-dollar bill from his wallet, tipping the attendant. Overjoyed at the gracious tip he leaves Scrow to his meal. As he starts shoveling the food into his mouth he turns on the TV and enjoys some cartoons he enjoyed as a child. A few chuckles and there is another knock on the door. Scrow opens the door and it is Hive. He lets her in and goes back to his breakfast enjoying his television programming.

MEANWHILE... AT THE LEGION OF DOOM

Treated to a large sweeping drone-like shot of the exterior of an iconic venue, the words "New Orleans, Louisiana" fade in and out on the lower left of the screen in yellow letters. They are followed by the words: "WrestlePlex - LIVE".

The building is dark and dormant as we sweep around its dome and then past a row of offices. Just a month ago, on a night like tonight, this building would be pulsing with energy, lights and sounds. Not tonight. With the show on the road, all was calm. We are carried through an open access hatch on the roof and into the still, dimly lit and starkly empty arena. One lone spotlight falls on the empty ring and the camera speeds through its beam with a briefly blinding flash. Clipping up the aisle and breezing through the dark curtain, we wind through empty, dark halls and wide, muted corridors.

Soon, we are sweeping through tidy, dim locker rooms, across placid Olympic-sized swimming pools, and sleazy radio studios. Through a heavy black door with a BANG and down a dusty set of cinder block steps, the drone swings hard right through another heavy door and past a row of steaming boilers, finally to a plain non-descript wooden closet door.

The door slowly swings open on our approach and we zip forward into a blanket of unending darkness. The black lasts forever, embracing us in its cold, uncertain arms before slowly, dimly, there is light.

It takes a long moment to see the light is fire. An old smoldering, ashy, unhealthy fire. Tired and weary, its last embers half-slumber, glowing gently but firmly. It takes another long moment to realize where the camera has taken us.

In the lower left of the screen, in yellow lettering: "The burnt-out husk of the Kabal Lair".

A man sits in the heap of ashes, seemingly unconcerned by our intrusion. The last glowing embers at his feet are the only light in his eyes.

Why is he here? He doesn't know. After Houston, he knows he ran. Lost, afraid, angry, and aimless, somehow he'd found himself here, at the DEFplex. But why here? Until he'd stumbled upon it in a frantic effort to hide, he hadn't known of this dark place's existence... Had he? Little was clear to him these days.

His thoughts take him to the man he hurt in Houston. The screams that called him to that lot. And what called him here? To the throne of the man he'd just broken? Perhaps to claim it as his own? He didn't know.

Taking a fistful of ashes in his hand, Corvo Alpha slowly and deliberately smears the ash across his eyes.

His thoughts take him to the man in the red mask. His friend? There are flashes of memory, more feeling than anything his mind's eye can form. All he could see in his mind's eye now was the yellow mask the red man had offered him at DEFCON. That mask was more than familiar. It felt right. And that terrified him.

Terror made him think of Lord Nigel. Bowing his head, Corvo shudders. He felt as if he was being pulled apart, slowly, by horses.

And so it was that the man you know as Corvo Alpha sat on his throne of ash, terrified of who he might be and horror-struck by what has to come next.

Some of us are here trying to forge our careers and not whore out the little bit we have left like them so I'll say it again. Fuck. Them.

Max Luck isn't done.

Max Luck:

We were put at the back of the line even after we had that match won last year. We waited seven fucking months to have that title shot ... and for SEVEN MONTHS nobody beat us. And nobody has beaten us since then. We created five-star beatdown after five-star beatdown and destroyed our mentors all because we could. Some of the best tag teams in DEFIANCE Wrestling! PCP. Los Tres Titanes. All beaten! ... but does DEFIANCE Wrestling or the almighty Favoured Saints book a rematch at the Ace of DEFIANCE Special or tonight? No, they screw us with tonight's match instead. That's why we went and paid DEFIANCE Wrestling a visit. Go check that out on DEFonDEMAND where we destroyed some public property proudly to make a point. Tonight, we're going to destroy the Saturday Night Specials then we're going to squeeze a title match from their little chicken-shit bodies.

Mason Luck takes the microphone and stares Christie down.

SATURDAY NIGHT SPECIALS & JACK MACE vs. THE LUCKY SEVENS & ALVARO DE VARGAS

After the tense interview from BFTA, we go to Darren Keebler and Lance Warner to give intros for this big main event.

DDK:

Wow... BFTA are fired up... pun not intended. We've got the big main event of Night Two coming up between feuds that have gotten incredibly personal. The Saturday Night Specials of Brock Newbludd and Pat Cassidy team up with former BFTA member Jack Mace, while having another former BFTA member, Ophelia Sykes, in their corner. They'll take on the current BFTA members Alvaro de Vargas and The Lucky Sevens tonight! Got all that?

Lance:

I did, Keebs, and this one has a lot of stories. SNS and The Lucky Sevens were scheduled to meet in a long-awaited rematch from Acts of DEFIANCE last year for the Unified Tag Titles only to degenerate into a wild brawl all over this arena before things could begin! Elsewhere, Alvaro de Vargas not only savagely attacked Jack Mace with over half a dozen chair shots, but had the audacity to spit on his father and sister who were both in attendance.

DDK:

It just goes to show you when we think Better Future can't stoop to any more lows, they keep doing things week to week. SNS might not be sure if either Ophelia or Jack can fully be trusted, but the Unified Tag Team Champions will have to if they want to get the win tonight! Our six-man main event happens... now!

Before Darren Quimbey gets the chance to even start... Guess who's back? Back again? On the ramp, wheeling out on his motorized wheelchair, wearing a dark green suit (the color of MONEY), is Tom Morrow. The jeers are out and they are loud as he turns on his BFTA-branded bluetooth headset.
