NICKY SYNZ vs. BLACK METAL

DDK:

Welcome, one and all to our final UNCUT before we get to DEFCON! In two weeks, all titles will be on the line and a large number of careers could potentially end one way or the other!

Lance:

Indeed! Titles will be decided, new contenders will be crowned, but either way... now we get to the action! We have The Frontman himself, Nicky Synz in action going one-on-one with BRAZEN star Black Metal!

Darren Quimbey:

The following singles match is set for one fall! Introducing first...

Nicky Synz, your favorite rock star and mine, emerge through the curtain to a nice positive reaction using a new theme song! Synz's long blond hair ripples in the wind as he headbangs along with his new theme song. On his way to the ring, he continues to headbang and slap the outstretched hands of some of the younger fans in attendance.

Darren Quimbey:

...From Los Angeles, California... weighing in at 216 pounds... he is NICKY SYNZ!

Synz is on the apron, playing a little air guitar and rocking out, before he enters the ring. He jumps up the top rope and plays a little more guitar to the people as the camera cuts inside the ring for the intro to his opponent.

Darren Quimbey:

And his opponent, already in the ring... from Torreon, Mexico, weighing in at 170 pounds... BLACK METAL!

The young deathmatch-inspired luchador mocks Nicky Synz from his corner of the ring.

DDK:

What an interesting start to the show. It's Nicky Synz' brand of metal against Black Metal! What can you tell us about him, Lance?

Lance:

Black Metal was signed to BRAZEN a few months ago from the deathmatch circuit of Mexico! What he lacks in size, he makes for with a wanton disregard for both his own safety and the safety of others. Nicky Synz will have to be careful here.

Synz has a size advantage over his opposition which doesn't always happen, but he looks ready for a fight regardless as referee Jonny Fastcountini calls for the bell.

DING DING

Nicky and Black Metal lock up... but it's only subterfuge on the part of the young luchador when he rakes the eyes of Nicky right off the bat! The crowd boos the tactics of Black Metal as he zooms off the ropes to come back and hit a basement dropkick to the knee of The Frontman! He hobbles over hurt as Black Metal rolls up to his feet. He runs off the ropes and then fires off a running dropkick that catches Nicky in the chest!

DDK:

Lance:

Nothing to lose and everything to gain by Black Metal here!

He charges at the corner as Nicky tries to gain his bearings. Black Metal runs, but Nicky grabs him and pitches him to

Lance:

Nicky Synz looking for a win here tonight to get back on track tonight!

The Frontman waits for Black Metal to get back to his feet, then leaps off the nearby middle rope with a springboard back elbow! He knocks the deathmatch-influenced luchador down and he rolls outside. Nicky kips to his feet and then gets cheers out of The Knoxville Faithful! He runs and zooms off the ropes before taking flight with a big suicide dive that knocks Black Metal back into the barricade! The luchador gets leveled as Nicky Synz gets back to his feet and throws up the horns for a few cheering fans in attendance.

Nicky Synz taking the fight back to Black Metal after that quick start! Gotta get him back into that ring, though.

He grabs Black Metal and throws him back under the bottom rope.... But before he can do anything else, Metal rolls away from him and goes under the adjacent rope to get to the ring apron. The BRAZEN star gets booed while the rocker of DEFIANCE goes after him by grabbing him by the neck...

Lance:

There's Black Metal playing dirty again!

He slides under the bottom rope and trips up Nicky Synz. Synz tries to roll through the sliding sunset flip pin, but Black Metal kips up to his feet and then BLASTS Nicky with a stiff superkick! The luchador is angry that Nicky kicks out! He curses at Nicky, then rolls out to the floor in order to grab a chair. DDK:

He has a wrench in hand! Maybe he isn't straying so far from his deathmatch rolls after all!

Fastcountini is getting rid of the chairs, and Black Metal swings...

Nicky ducks! He kicks him Black Metal in the gut to get him to drop the chair and then hits him with a suplex that throws him right into the turnbuckle!

Lance:

Oooh bad landing for Black Metal! He tried to cheat behind the official's back and paid for it!

DDK:

That he did! Nicky Synz is back up!

Nicky reaches his arms out and fires up The Faithful as he makes some space. He sees Black Metal trying to get up and then charges at the corner before delivering a running back elbow! He rolls out of the corner in dramatic fashion only to come back and crush Black Metal's rib cage with a running shoulder thrust in the corner!

The Kinseys Are Ready For Their Close Up

A young Caitlyn Kinsey stands in a blue top with red lace trim and matching shorts with black boots before her locker room. Her hands are trembling with fear. Right behind her is her mother Aurora Kaye, her hair a mixture of blue and black, wearing a short for the band The Bangles.

Caitlyn:

I... I can't believe she did this to me, mom. I haven't even been in BRAZEN for five minutes, and I already have a match on Uncut?

Aurora:

I know, dear. I know. I told you that your grandmother is very --

Out with a giant, cryptic smile is Tabitha Kinsey. She has dark brown hair that is styled in the shape of a Congressional candidate, complete with shell beads, and a Tweed jacket over a white blouse with a matching Tweed skirt. It is clear from the look on Tabitha's face that she has been adhered to for several decades.

Tabitha:

Kind? Is that the word you're looking for, since I managed to use my sway to get my granddaughter a TV match this early in her career?

Aurora rolls her eyes. Caitlyn can't even bare to look at her stately granddaughter in the face.

Aurora:

Mom, Caitlyn doesn't want a TV match. She hasn't even had a match in BRAZEN yet.

Tabitha:

Oh, Aurora, dear. Why don't you let Caitlyn speak for herself? Because most professional wrestlers aren't like you, who are willing to give up on their potential.

Caitlyn is trying to find a way to speak as Aurora looks very pissy at her domineering mom.

Tabitha:

Well, then, I'll speak for you, dear. It's every young wrestler's goal to get on television. The sooner you can get on television, the better off your career will be.

Caitlyn:

Yeah, but there are so many people who have been in BRAZEN for years who have never appeared on Uncut! Like... they're going to hate me.

Tabitha fakes a gasp.

Tabitha:

It's professional wrestling, Caitlyn, not one of the craft fairs your mother is so fond of. Nobody is friends in professional wrestling, no matter how much they pretend. So, you can either wait for years in BRAZEN hoping for a shot or you can get on television right from the start. Either way, people are going to hate you. And, well... I call the shots, ultimately.

Aurora looks horrified at what her mother just said. Caitlyn looks worried. Tabitha then places her hand on her granddaughter's shoulder.

Tabitha:

Plus, I did this because even though you only have recently entered my life I love you dearly and unconditionally.

Right before Caitlyn can react, we hear a familiar voice from off-screen.

Teri Melton:

Tabitha Kinsey. As she lives and breathes!

The two women have a brief staredown with each other. And then they exchange warm smiles and kiss each other on the cheek as they hug. Then they give each other a European style kiss on the side of each cheek. And then right behind Teri walks JJ Dixon, his arm in a sling, but it's highly noticeable that he and Caitlyn are exchanging awkward smiles at each other.

Teri Melton:

Oh, hello, Aurora. And you must be Caitlyn! I've heard so much about you already. Your scores at the combine were impressive. Why, the only other person who had numbers at those levels were Mr. Dixon here.

Aurora gives a snide look at Teri. It is clear the two women do not like each other. And the awkward glares between JJ and Caitlyn continue.

Tabitha:

I am so glad to see you again, Ms. Melton. It has been ages since you were my young intern and protege learning all of the tricks in my very expensive handbag. And since you've been here in DEFIANCE? I understand that Mr. Dixon here has had two main event matches the past few months and a number of successes. And you? Ready for your closeup, as we always knew, and the Rookie of the Year!

Teri Melton:

I'm not the Rookie of the Year, Ms. Kinsey. I'm a goddamn legend already.

There's a very awkward and cold feeling between Teri and Tabitha after their initial friendly embrace. Aurora stands in the background between both women, JJ behind Teri, with Caitlyn behind Tabitha.

Teri Melton:

Well, with that, I must get going. I'm scouting a prospective tag team for Your Uncut Gems. And, well, I've got my eyes out on you too, Caitlyn.

Teri turns and leaves but JJ stays.

Tabitha:

Let's do lunch, Teri! My treat!

Tabitha turns to leave, but Caitlyn stays. Aurora takes a deep breath and nervously follows her mother.

Caitlyn:

They both awkwardly chuckle as they speak at the same time.

Caitlyn:

Yeah, my first match. I'm absolutely not ready. I've been here for like five minutes.

JJ Dixon:

Well, no one is ready for their first match. I waited for four years before I finally got my shot at the bigtime. I wish I only had to wait for five minutes. Count yourself lucky.

More awkwardness.

Lance:

Caballero has been in BRAZEN for a while, and there have been two knocks on him. First, he has always been more focused on his appearance than anything else. Second, he always looks for shortcuts in the ring and avoids contact to his objectively beautiful face. But while that may be a hindrance in singles wrestling, shortcuts and cheap shots tend to work better in a tag match setting.

Caballero grabs Reeves by the right leg and lifts him up. But as he does, Reeves immediately counters with an enziguri that causes Caballero to do a full front flip. Raiden stomps on the mat, and the crowd claps in rhythm as Reeves makes the crawl to his corner!

UNCAGED, UNLEASHED, UNSTUCK

We fade in on a dilapidated warehouse that is empty save for an oversized tiger cage in a dark, dingy corner. Its floor is littered with untouched dust and molding bones. Its rusting door is unlocked, ajar, and unmoving. Hazy light slats in through cracked and broken, filthy windows.

Seated "indian-style" just outside the cell door is a slumped, shirtless figure. To the viewer, his identity is clear. Of that, he is less certain himself.

He lifts his head, panning his eyes skyward just as a skewed projection plays against and across the cage, the man, and the wall behind them both. Fuzzy, unfocused colors dance upon them, dazzlingly cutting through the dull bleakness of the warehouse.

The images being thrown against the cage and wall slowly come into focus.

The slowly moving frames are those of last week's second night of DEFtv. Alpha's large hands are tightened, coiled around the throat of his master. His Lordship's eyes are bulging, his face a fearful frozen mask. Yet the voice we hear is much calmer, icier.

Lord Nigel Trickelbush: [voice-over]

When I found him, he was scum, do you understand? He was less than nothing. He was LOST.

Somewhere in the far distance, a man booms out a single word. It is "NO!" The next frame is MV1 on the stage, arms outstretched in a conciliatory manner.

MV1: [voice-over]

He's always been... an explosive guy. From the very start. Boy, could I tell you stories.

The brick wall picture-show shifts to images of the Masked Violators at their tragic height. Lithe, chiseled Red Mask and stocky, strong Yellow Mask, arms raised and joined in celebration, post-match. Corvo seems to lift his head to regard it, two large paint cans sitting off to his side outside the cage.

Just when you think you know where he is coming from... you don't. I'd say that maybe that much is still true today.

A still image of Alpha and MV1 eye to eye, nose to nose skews against the seated monster and the cage behind him.

MV1: [voice-over]

After what we saw last week... there's no way I believe he can't be saved.

The image shudders around Corvo.

Lord Nigel Trickelbush: [voice-over]

Oh, even after what transpired... I have to believe I can still bring him to heel. He can be saved.

Again, the film shudders upon the wall. In the foreground, Corvo shudders with it.

Lord Nigel Trickelbush: [voice-over]

He belongs to me. And while he sought to forsake me... I will not turn away from him. I won't let him go. And I... am not going anywhere.

The image shifts to a close up of the red wrestling mask of MV1, tightened and contorted in confusion and concern.

Lord Nigel Trickelbush: [voice-over]

I'd destroy my Corvo before I ever let anyone take me from him. But it won't come to that. Oh, no. No. I've fought too hard, too long.

Tighter still on the striking blue eyes of MV1.

MV1: [voice-over]

I've fought so hard to be here, to stay here, for this opportunity. Not to be a champion, not to earn accolades... I've fought here for THIS opportunity, once and for all, to win my friend back. And this is it. This is my one last chance, I know that.

Corvo standing triumphant over Masked Violator #1 last summer at MAXIMUM DEFIANCE.

MV1: [voice-over]

If my arm isn't raised at DEFCON, I'm gone... it's over. And I'm not ready to go just yet.

Lord Nigel Trickelbush: [voice-over]

I don't think I am ready to go just now. DEFIANCE has only yet begun to know me and my capabilities. Only yet begun to feel my influence. I am far from finished. But the masked man? His days are indeed numbered, as the parlance goes.

The image slowly zooms on the vacant eyes of the victorious Alpha at the 2022 PPV.

MV1: [voice-over]

He left the world wondering last week... Last time, at MAXDEF, I didn't want to fight... and I paid for it. This time... I'm wondering if HE even wants to fight. And if he doesn't, then Lord Nigel is going to pay for it.

GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT vs. WES INGRAM AND SOMCHAI

DDK:

We've got some action coming up next on UNCUT! Gentlemen's Agreement look to get back to their winning ways and they look to do so against the team of Wes Ingram and Somchai from BRAZEN!

Lance:

The young 19-year-old Wes Ingram has been looking for his first elusive win in DEFIANCE and BRAZEN, but has come up short. He's tangled with Gentlemen's Agreement once before, but now he has found a partner in the Thai giant, Somchai! 6'8" and 289! A real prospect in BRAZEN, but we'll see what they can do against an established tag team in Gentlemen's Agreement next.

The two men stop in front of the ring, exchange a gentlemanly handshake and then slowly climb up the steel steps while getting jeers from the crowd. Once they shed their respective jackets, they neatly fold them and put them away as Ingram and Prince start talking strategy.

DDK:

A few shows ago, it was Gentlemen's Agreement who were caught by surprise from The Saturday Night Specials, under the guise of Mucha Luchas.

Lance:

They haven't forgotten that, either. They want to make a statement here tonight.

The British/American tandem of Gentlemen's Agreement tease shaking hands with Somchai and Ingram, but then fake them out and shake hands with each other instead. That gets them jeered. Somchai wants to start, but Wes Ingram does first. Lord Sewell starts for his team.

Oliver Tarquin Monroe keeps the armbar locked in, but Ingram fights back to a knee and then delivers big elbows to the gut. He gets up and nails a dropkick on OTM sending him back to the corner.

FINAL LOOK: SNS vs. THE LUCKY SEVENS

We're back in the DEFIANCE production studio for the final chapter in the on-going retrospective of the feud between The Saturday Night Specials and The Lucky Sevens. Lance Warner stands in front of a television screen with the DEFIANCE logo on it. Lance is dressed formally and looks into the camera with a professional expression.

Lance Warner:

Welcome, ladies and gentlemen. Tonight, we finish our special look at the years of history behind DEFCON's tag team championship main event. When we last left The Saturday Night Specials and Lucky Sevens, Tom Morrow had sent Ophelia Sykes to distract Pat Cassidy long enough for The Sevens to walk away with the belts. While Morrow's plan ultimately failed, The Lucky Sevens still had the last laugh as they left the champs lying to close ACTS of DEFIANCE '21.

The screen behind Warner begins to play clips as he speaks.

Lance Warner:

It wouldn't be until several months later when scandal broke: following DEFCON '22, Pat Cassidy and Ophelia Sykes found themselves in legal hot water for taking part in a late-night bar room brawl. The fight wasn't the story, though: apparently, what had started out as a ruse by Morrow had secretly developed into a real relationship. Cassidy and Sykes had been seeing each other in secret, and suffice to say that Tom Morrow did not take this news lightly.

On the screen, we see The Lucky Sevens firing Ophelia at the DEFTv following DEFCON 2022. She storms away in a huff. Then, The Saturday Night Specials rush the ring and begin to brawl with The Sevens.

Lance Warner:

On the very same DEFTv where The Sevens gave Ophelia her walking papers, The Saturday Night Specials put their championship on the line against the twin giants. The bout never officially began, however, as by now there was so much animosity between the two teams, they instead brawled all around the arena. The match was thrown as the four men beat the tar out of each other.

Max Luck puts Pat Cassidy through a wall while Brock Newbludd drops an elbow on the announce table, putting Mason through it.

Lance Warner:

It was becoming clear to all involved that this rivalry was becoming personal. So personal, in fact, that DEFIANCE became too small to hold it. After The Lucky Sevens suffered a surprise defeat at the hands of SNS in a six man tag, they went on a path of destruction that was so violent and so out of line, DEFIANCE had no choice but to fire them! We thought we'd seen the end of the Brothers Luck, until they threw their final hail mary...

It's DEFTv, and The Saturday Night Specials (along with Ophelia Sykes) celebrate a successful tag championship defense in the ring. Suddenly, the DEFiatron lights up, and we see an image that has become infamous: the original Ballyhoo Brew up in flames! The Lucky Sevens look into the camera and flash their Winning Hand gesture with sly grins.

Lance Warner:

With their beloved Ballyhoo destroyed, an angry Saturday Night Specials demanded they get a chance to get The Lucky Sevens in the ring - even going so far as threatening to walk away with their championship if DEFIANCE didn't meet their demands. Well, DEFIANCE gave them what they wanted: a match at Maximum DEFIANCE 2022 with the now unemployed Lucky Sevens. And that's when tragedy struck...

We see Siobhan Cassidy turning on The Saturday Night Specials and costing them the match... and the titles. The Lucky Sevens hold their belts high as The Saturday Night Specials look dejected in the ring.

Lance Warner:

And that betrayal sent SNS into a spiral: they'd lost their business, they'd lost family, and now they'd lost their championship. It's taken nearly a year, but the tale of the Saturday Night Specials slow climb back to championship contention comes to a head at DEFCON 2023, when they quite literally put it all on the line - if they fail to capture the Unified Tag Team Championship in their match against the Lucky Sevens, they will never be allowed to team again.

MATCH GRAPHIC:

Unified Tag Team Championship:
The Lucky Sevens (c) (w/Tom Morrow)
vs.
The Saturday Night Specials (w/Ophelia Sykes)

Lance Warner:

It was only two years ago at DEFCON that we saw a match with similar stakes: The Comments Section defeated The Fuse Brothers, retiring that legendary tag team. The Saturday Night Specials, arguably one of the most popular tag teams in DEFIANCE history, could be about to meet a similar fate. In two weeks time, it's all on the line! This has been a story that involved betrayal, heartbreak, good, evil, redemption, and bloodshed! You can't miss on this huge match up - three years in the making! And one way or the other, these two hated rivals end things between them!

Warner closes with the hard sell.

See you all at DEFCON!

Lance:

Tabitha Kinsey might not be a name many people remember, as she was a giant star right before the wrestling boom in the 90s took off. Actually, giant star is probably underestimating her.
